WABASH GRADUATES ITS 143rd CLASS

Presentation of degrees to nearly 140 men, recognition of its retiring President of the Board of Trustees, and alumni reunions will highlight Commencement weekend activities at Wabash College.

Wabash completes its one hundred forty-third year this spring, and the Class of 1975 will pursue paths which earlier graduates traditionally have taken, including graduate or professional school, teaching, and business.

Speaking at Commencement Exercises at two thirty on Sunday afternoon, May 18, are two graduating seniors, Robert Paul Chamness, of Marshall, Indiana, and Mauri Adam Ditzler, of Rosedale, Indiana.

At noon on Saturday, May 17, Eugene N. Beesley, Vice President of the Wabash Board of Trustees and President of the Lilly Endowment, Inc., and his fellow trustees will present a portrait of retiring Board President John P. Collett to the College. Collett, a member of the Class of 1924, has served on the Board since 1939 and will continue to be a member of the College's governing body. President of the Board since 1965, his tenure in that office has been marked by unprecedented improvements to the physical facilities of the College and important increases in its endowment strength. Wabash President Thaddeus Seymour will accept the portrait in ceremonies at the Lilly Library.

PI DELTA EPSILON JOURNALISM HONORARY INITIATES ELEVEN

In a move that will hopefully help bring it out of the depths of inactivity, the Wabash chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon, a national journalism honorary, initiated eleven new members.

An honorary organized for the promotion of collegiate journalism, entrance into Pi Delta Epsilon requires work in journalism which the chapter judges to be outstanding and a specific grade point. Faculty or staff members who have done outstanding work may be elected honorary members by the chapter, but only students may become regular members.

The Wabash chapter was written off as a dead chapter three years ago by the national organization since notification of initiations had not been sent to them. This year the chapter decided to reaffiliate with the national

Brass Rubbings On Display

A special feature of brass from churches all over Commencement Weekend is a showing of brass rubbings in Yandes Gallery. Done by

Wabash faculty members while on leave in England, these rubbings of memorial and the initiation of the new members is the first step in that direction.

Students who were elected regular members were: Seniors; Gordon Evans, Frank Paul, Rick McHugh, Dave Delorenzo, Brad Boyd. Juniors: Gary Zack, Fred Miller, John Moyer. Sophomores; Mike Murphy, Tom Garrity. Freshmen, John Keresy.

Staff members elected were Wendy Tucker as an honorary member and Rich White as an alumni member.

Also this year, Pi Delta Epsilon recognized John Keresy with the outstanding freshman in journalism and gave Distinguished Service Awards to Dean Norman Moore and Robert S. Harvey.

Mrs. Walter Fertig, Professor and Mrs. Raymond Williams and Mrs. J. J. Barnes have contributed samples of their work for this handsome display.

Yandes Gallery hours on Saturday, May 17 are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. The Gallery will also be open Manday, May 19 from 5 to 7 p.m.

Commencement is one of those special ceremonies which focus on the positive side of life. It is reinforced by Class Reunions which celebrate the continuity of more than half a century of similar occasions. The pride of Commencement and the joy of Reunion combine to make this weekend the happiest one of the year.

I congratulate members of the Class of 1975 for the accomplishments to which their diplomas testify, and I offer a warm welcome to members of previous classes as they return to the campus this weekend.

May Reunion and Commencement of 1975 be a happy and rewarding occasion for all.

Riggs and Hadley Appointed To The Board Of Publications

The Wabash College Board of Publications has announced two new appointees to the Board for the coming year.

Connie Riggs, assistant to the President, and David Hadley, assistant professor of political science, are new members of the Board which supervises student publications at the College.

Mrs. Riggs and Dr. Hadley will replace Board members, Dean Norman C. Moore and Robert S. Harvey, College Archivist, who are retiring from the Board.

A native of Indianapolis, Mrs. Riggs has gained frequent recognition for creative writing including First Prize in the Writer's Digest National Short Story Contest in 1967. She has had eight major articles published in the last year including a recent short story in the literary magazine, Aurora. Mrs. Riggs also writes a bi-weekly column, Grub Street, for the Crawfordsville Journal-Review.

A former Advisor to the Wabash campus newspaper, the BACHELOR, Mrs. Riggs attended Franklin College and received a Bachelor of Arts degree in English-communications this past Sunday, May 11, from St. Mary-of-the-Woods College.

Dr. Hadley received his undergraduate degree from Indiana University in journalism before pursuing masters and doctoral studies in political science at that institution. Hadley, who has instructed at Wabash since

1975 Wabash Glee Club

Glee Club Begins Month Long Tour On Wednesday

The Wabash College Glee Club will leave Indianapolis to begin its month-long concert tour of seven European countries at 12:30 on May 21, 1975.

Nearly forty members of the Club will present a brief concert of some of the selections they will sing overseas in the Weir Cook terminal building before boarding their flight. Among the audience for the impromptu concert will be travellers coming the other way to attend the Indianapolis 500 mile race the following Sunday.

Dr. Thaddeus Seymour, President of Wabash, will be on hand to wish each man Godspeed on the fourth European concert tour the Club has made since 1963.

In thirty-two days of travel, the Club will visit

Scotland, England, France, Switzerland, West Germany, Belgium, and the Netherlands and will present thirteen concerts. Glee Club members have been preparing selections and earning money for the trip since last fall. Their repertoire includes religious music spanning five centuries, spirituals, folk songs, theater and show music, and drinking songs, and they will vary their program at each concert.

The Wabash College Glee Club is one of the oldest student organizations on campus and dates from the 1890's.

Robert S. Harvey Recognized For Service To Wabash Publications

A veteran Hoosier newsman received special recognition from student journalists on Monday, May 5. Members of the Board of Publications at Wabash presented Robert S. Harvey a scroll and a typesetter's tray in thanks for the thirty-three years of advice and support he has offered the student staffs of the BACHELOR and the WABASH.

Harvey, a native of Marion, Indiana and 1928 graduate of Wabash, served as City Editor of the Marion CHRONICLE in his first year after college. From 1929 to 1941, he held the post of State Editor of the Indianapolis STAR. A nationally recognized leader in journalism, Harvey served as national President of Pi Delta Epsilon journalism honorary society from 1954 to 1957.

Harvey joined the staff of Wabash College as Instructor in English and Librarian in 1941, but the coming of war soon added important new duties to his schedule. For four years, he held the post of Acting Dean of the College, and in that position worked closely with the U.S. Navy V-12 training program which operated on the campus. For twenty-five years, from 1946 to 1971, he served as Registrar of the College. In 1959 and 1960, Harvey held the presidency of the Indiana Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

Harvey has taught journalism at Wabash for three decades, and has served, formally, as advisor to student and alumni publications throughout that time.

Miller Named Bachelor Editor

Wabash College junior, Charles F. Miller, Jr., has been named editor of the BACHELOR, the campus newspaper, for the 1975 fall semester.

A Dean's List pre-law student, Miller is a political science major. He is a member of Pi Delta Epsilon journalism fraternity, the Wabash Board of Publications, and the pre-law club.

Miller has worked on the College paper for three years and served as managing editor this spring semester.

"ONE OF THE CRAZIEST PLAYS EVER WRITTEN . . ."

Don't Miss "A Flea In Her Ear"

Director Terrence Ortwein has delivered what he promised — "one of the craziest plays ever written" — in the current Wabash College Scarlet Masque production of Georges Feydeau's turn-of-the-century bedroom farce "A Flea in Her Ear." Ortwein has welded a cast of non-professional actors from the College and the Crawfordsville community into a thoroughly competent and wildly funny group of entertainers. The cast includes three Wabash seniors, two of whom have never been on the Masque stage before, who will graduate in Wabash's 137th Commencement this Sunday after the final performances Friday and Saturday nights.

Tammy Tudor plays Raymonde, the insurance executive's wife who gets the "flea in her ear" when, through a natural misinterpretation in the first few minutes of the play, she begins to suspect her husband of infidelity. By the end of the second act, she has managed to entangle just about every character in the play in the trap she sets to catch her husband. Senior John Miller does an excellent job as the husband, Chandeise, and in the frenzied second act plays another totally different character as well, making several costume changes with lightning rapidity.

Steve Baker carries off the part of Camille, the nephew with a cleft palate, with amazing clarity, and is hilarious in Act 2; Bob Shapiro is suitably oily as Tournel, the family friend who goes in Chandeise's place to keep the rendezvous; and Kathy Ford, as Raymonde's old convent-school chum who helps set the trap, does a beautiful job of getting ensnared herself.

Tom Mahoney, also a senior, stands out as the most vigorous of this madly energetic cast, and his portrayal of Homenides, the jealous Spaniard (complete with the lisp all Spaniards are supposed to have) is a tremendous piece of acting. George Wilder and Lisa Cundiff, as the husband-and-wife butler and maid, perform with polish. Jeff Lindholm as Finache, the doctor, helps the play keep a little bit of sanity.

Jo Ortwein, as Olympe, presides over the madhouse second act, set in the rendezvous Hotel Coq D'Or. Despite her frequent Masque appearances, it is clear we have seen too little of her up to now. Senior Mike Kiley, as Olympe's husband Feraillon, adds just the right amount of strutting and stomping to the scene. Others demanding our attention are John Miller in his two roles as Chandeise and as the hotel handyman Roche, the mad Prussian "guest" Larry Meagher, and poor old uncle Baptiste (Ray Rick), who revolves unhappily on the ingenious two-way bed. Connie Riggs, as the old maid Eugenie, provides the very little bit of sanity in this act with professional aplomb. And, to cap off Act 2, all the remaining "guests" (Chip Eberle, Jerry Nesvacil, Becki Poppaw, Laurie Krehbiel, and Betsy Dreyer) are driven from their rooms and briefly display their talents.

Act 3 slows things down considerably, and carefully sorts out and rebuilds the pieces of what were ordinary, respectable lives not long before — not as exciting as Act 2 (not much could match that!), but necessary

253 Men Confirm Their Intention To Attend Wabash

The Admissions staff has announced that 253 men have confirmed their intention to attend Wabash College next fall. This is compared to 218 this time last year.

All fifteen of the Lilly Award winners plan to enroll at Wabash in the fall, as well as twenty-eight of the thirty Honor Scholars.

The quality of next year's freshman Class appears higher than in the past as indicated by an increase in the median SAT scores. 80% of next year's freshmen come from the top 30% of their graduating classes.

The success of the admissions staff is seen largely to result from the fact that much of the staff has been together for nearly three years.

Admissions has tried to cut attrition from the college by recruiting bright, motivated young men. It is thought that through an early exposure to the Wabash Campus, fewer men will leave the college for the wrong reasons.

Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.

Bob Morgan, of San Francisco's American Conservatory Theater, has done a beautiful job as Guest Designer of settings and costumes, as has Dan Krehbiel as Technical Director and Lighting Designer. Some of the especially gorgeous costumes were executed by Masque regular Andree Stern. The work of Stage Manager Jim Tinsley and Assistant Hal Gueutal is simply tremendous.

It would be a shame if this weekend's Wabash Commencement and Reunion activities had sold out the Friday and Saturday evening performances, but fortunately this is not the case. Tickets for either performance can be purchased at the Humanities Auditorium Box Office On Grant Street, or can be reserved by calling 362-0677, from 8:30 - 5:00. Curtain time is 9:00 p.m. both nights.

WABASH AWARDS FOUR HONORARY DEGREES

Wabash College will present honorary degrees to four distinguished Hoosiers at its Commencement exercises on Sunday afternoon, May 18. Three men and one woman will receive the degrees in recognition of their leadership in the arts, religious and social concerns, law and education at Wabash's one hundred thirty-seventh commencement.

Degree winners include Mrs. Virginia Beall Ball (Doctor of Humane Letters), of Muncie; and the Rt. Rev. John P. Craine (Doctor of Divinity), Cleon H. Foust (Doctor of Laws), and Dr. Alexander Elvin Jones (Doctor of Laws), all of Indianapolis.

Mrs. Ball is a native of Texas and graduate of Baylor University. A businesswoman, she has offered important leadership to Indiana through citizen groups studying youth affairs and the problems of juvenile delinquency, and as a founder and officer of the Indiana Committee for the Humanities, a branch of the National Endowment for the Humanities. She is married to Edmund F. Ball, a Wabash Trustee, and they have two children.

John P. Craine has served as Episcopal Bishop of Indianapolis since 1959. His ministry has brought him to Wabash College many times, and he is Baccalaureate preacher at the College this year. The Ohio native now serves as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of his alma mater, Kenyon College. He held pastorates in Ohio, California, Washington and Indianapolis before his election as Bishop. A highly respected and senior member of the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church, Bishop Craine is also a leader of the Indianapolis community. A past president of the Indianapolis Urban League, he also serves on the board of the National Urban League, belongs to the Indiana University Friends of Music, and advises the Alcoholism Institute of Indianapolis.

Cleon H. Foust graduated from Wabash in 1928 and earned his law degree at the University of Arizona. He has practiced in Arizona and Indiana, and served as Attorney General of Indiana during the years 1947-1949. Since 1949, he has taught at the Indiana University School of Law, Indianapolis. As Dean of the Law School from 1967 to 1973, he supervised the building of a new campus and the growth of the Indianapolis Law School to include many hundreds of regular and evening students. He now devotes considerable time to the work of several law reform commissions and study groups. Foust's fellow Wabash alumni have twice elected him one of their representatives on the College's Board of Trustees, and he has received the Wabash Alumnus Award of Merit. Foust is a native of Columbia City.

Alexander Elvin Jones was born in Independence, Missouri and graduated with honors from DePauw University. Following three years service in the Navy during the Second World War, he completed graduate and doctoral work in English at the University of Minnesota. His text, WRITING GOOD PROSE, and numerous articles on Mark Twain reflect his excellence as a teacher and scholar. Jones came to Butler University as Professor of English and Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in 1959. In 1963, he was inaugurated President of Butler. Under his leadership, the University has grown and added major improvements to its facilities. The respect and confidence of his colleagues led to Jones' election as an officer of the American Association of Independent Colleges and Universities and as Chairman of the Board of the Independent Colleges and Universities of Indiana. A past president of the Indianapolis Kiwanis Club, his civic responsibilities include service on the Boards of the Chamber of Commerce, Metropolitan Indianapolis Television Association, and Winona Memorial Hospital.

Silins Wins Second Fulbright

Dr. Peteris Silins

Peteris M. Silins, Assistant Professor of German and Russian, has received a Fulbright grant to participate in a summer seminar on "Postwar Developments in Germany". The eight-week session will draw twenty-five teachers of German language, culture and politics to the Goethe Institute of the University of Gottingen, West Germany.

The seminar will offer intensive study of trends in German society and contact with leaders in the Federal German Republic. The American teachers will meet in Boston in early July before proceeding to West Germany.

This grant is Silins' second Fulbright. In 1965-66, he spent a year at the University of Mainz. In addition, he spent a portion of last summer in Bonn attending a meeting of the American Association of Teachers of German.

Silins holds degrees from Michigan State and Indiana Universities and has done advanced work in German and Russian at Middlebury College. He has taught at Wabash since 1960. This year, he added to his language courses a class in Russian History.

Silins has served as an interpreter and linguist with the U.S. Army in Europe. He is a member of the American Association of Teachers of Slavic and East European Languages, Delta Phi Alpha German language honorary society, and Phi Gamma Delta.

Ortwein Announces Casts For Joint Fall Production

Following auditions at both St. Mary-Of-The-Woods and Wabash, Director Terry Ortwein has announced the following cast for THE RIMERS OF ELDRITCH, a joint production which will be performed next September at St. Mary's, Wabash, and in Indianapolis:

Wilma Atkins, Marilyn Welch; Martha Truit, Mil Long; Nelly Winrod, Mary Blair; Judge - Preacher, Cary Riggs; Mary Winrod, Mary Mason.

A grant from the Indiana Committee For The Humanities will enable St. Mary's and Wabash theater departments and students to come back a week early in the fall for rehearsals and construction. Each performance will be followed by a discussion led by a three-person panel, and will allow each audience to discuss the concerns and implications of Lanford Wilson's portrayal of a small midwestern town which has been exploited by coal interests and then left. Wilson's 1967 drama opened at the Cafe La Mama and earned him the coveted Drama Desk-Vernon Rice Award for his outstanding contribution to the off-Broadway season.

Twenty Years Of Involvement

Nearly three years ago, a foreign exchange student came to the United States. He attended a suburban area high school, lived with an American family, and acquired many friends.

This young man, now nineteen, returned to his homeland in the summer of 1973 and entered college. His education came to an abrupt end in March of this year, when his family ran once again from the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

After losing 56,000 American lives and spending $150 billion in South Vietnam and Cambodia, it is hard to see how the United States benefited from its involvement in Southeast Asia. Both of these nations now are ruled by strongly anti-American governments.

This nation made serious mistakes including its Vietnam policy and the war, but it does not justify the actions of the Communists. The forces fighting to 'liberate' South Vietnam slaughtered tens of thousands of civilians who played no part in any battle.

When the Viet Cong temporarily seized Hue in 1968, men, women, and children were executed by the thousands and tossed into shallow graves. In open, flagrant violation of the Paris Peace (?) Agreement, South Vietnam was overrun.

The last letter received by the young man who spent a year in the U.S. was a passionate plea for any type of help to get him and his family to America, this nation that talks so highly about freedom and the rights of man.

Where is this student and his family? Where are the hundreds of thousands of people who for the past thirty years have lived in terror of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong. Will they too be executed?

Two hundred years after Americans began a struggle for life and liberty, nations are being conquered by men without regard for either. The children of today's Vietnamese will be taught to hate and despise all Americans and their way of life.

There won't be any more foreign exchange students from South Vietnam. But, more important, millions of people will now live lives without choices, without real rights.

That is what twenty years of United States involvement in Southeast Asia accomplished.

Dr. Edward B. McLean

Dr. Edward B. McLean To Be Awarded Law Degree

One member of the graduating class of the Indiana University Law School at Indianapolis will not be present to receive his diploma at commencement exercises May 18 — but for an unusual reason. Edward B. McLean, a cum laude member of Indianapolis Law School's class of 1975 will attend the Wabash Commencement instead.

McLean started his law studies four years ago, and finished more quickly by using his sabbatical last fall to attend classes full time. He was prompted to study law by his belief that its concepts and philosophy should be part of a liberal arts background for undergraduates. Rather than specializing in certain fields, he attempted to gain a broad exposure to legal principles.

McLean has already incorporated parts of his legal education into the courses he teaches on "The Philosophy of the Law" and Constitutional Law. He plans a special senior seminar on constitutional law for next fall, and will base future research and his own writing on what he learned at Indianapolis Law School.

McLean holds Bachelor, Master, and Doctoral degrees from Indiana University. He taught at the University of Florida and Florida Presbyterian College before coming to Wabash in 1968. He is a member of the American Association of University Professors and the American Political Science Association.

Freshman, David J. Mamula, has been named editor of the 1975-76 College yearbook.

"I'm hoping that the yearbook will be totally different from past books and that it will be a work of art rather than a book of pictures," Mamula commented.

From East Chicago, In., David is a graduate of Washington High School where he served as section editor of the year book for two years and as editor for two years.

A biology-music major, he enjoys playing the piano, reading, skiing and handicrafts. Mamula is a member of Phi Kappa Psi social fraternity.

I turned in search again; —
As now I sought out all the ships that sailed o'er the edge,
And all my dreams lost in the dimmer lights.*
